Cupid on Target with Anastasia's Valentine Beauty Pageant

Judges Jump at Chance to Date Contestants on Thrilling Romance Tours

BANGOR, Maine, USA, March 5, 2010 – The sparkling ticker tape has fallen on the gripping Miss Valentine 2010 beauty pageant after a month of frantic online voting which chalked up over 70,000 clicks. Crowned in the lingering aftermath of Valentine's Day, the dazzling winner Lyudmila was left on cloud nine with thousands of judges reveling in the chance to date the glorious contestants.

The heaven-sent contest at www.anastasiamissvalentine.com is part of a unique dating experience offered by Anastasia International that culminates in a rousing romance tour where guys can meet their special lady from Russia and the CIS. Organized romance tours take place every year with forthcoming trips scheduled to cities including Odessa, Dnepropetrovsk and Kharkov. All contenders in Miss Valentine will receive golden invitations to the next events along with around 1,000 other beauties.

A captivating window onto the irresistible Slavic beauty in store on the romance tours, 39 of the most amazing contestants were whittled down to one true queen of Cupid. Spirited judges studied the contestant's photos and videos all inspired by the 14 February festival of love, and sent a flood of Valentine messages to the 39 yummy delights. Blond angel Lyudmila from Nikolaev came up trumps and stole the judges' hearts with 4,786 votes. Second place went to black-haired babe Svetlana from Nikolaev with 3,582 votes, while simmering Olga from Poltava placed third.

Miss Valentine came to an end with all the beauty and grace of a triple axel jump. However the show lives on as all judges can contact any of the lip-smacking entrants via the pioneering dating tools live chat, email correspondence and phone introduction. And if the judges join a romance tour in 2010, they may even meet the beauty pageant babe they voted for face-to-face.
