Digital Romance Moves Forward with Web 2.0 Generation

International Online Dating Site Breaks Out with User Movies on Home Page

BANGOR, Maine, USA, December 7, 2009 – There exists a plethora of online dating services on the market all vying to bring couples together for love, romance and perhaps something more. From the first virtual invitation to a thrilling face-to-face meeting, it's become the norm for married couples to have first made contact on the net. But in today's hectic cyberspace, it's not enough for any company to simply set-up a dating site then sit back and wait for success.

Today's Web 2.0 internet technology means that social networking and exclusive content is beginning to dominate, with even more emphasis on innovation and direct marketing. The internet now more than ever brings the online dating experience alive. Faced with the ongoing challenge to stimulate members with novel ideas, pioneer of modern international dating AnastasiaDate.com has just incorporated major new features into its already robust and striking website to boost the bond between glorious Slavic women and Western men.

One substantial upgrade means that Anastasia's clients are now able see a number of ladies in motion, no longer just static photos, on the homepage. This brings Anastasia's clients more, live information about their prospective soul-mates. This lively feature will launch users straight into the dating stratosphere, as it provides a direct link to numerous scintillating ladies' profiles, many of whom are available to Live Chat. To enhance this interactive experience, tempting notes from ladies to Live Chat now appear even if a visitor is not logged in.

In addition to this instant ringside seat to Live Chat, ladies also have larger thumbnails and photos for a clearer view and better accessibility. To signpost men to the freshest members, a 'NEW' marker is added to all those eager women who've registered on Anastasia within the last month. This is complemented by a new, easier contacts removal system in a gentleman's live chat menu.

These innovations couple with an already rich experience on Anastasia where clients can connect with 1000's of ravishing Russian and CIS women by a host of client oriented features including an efficient E-mail Correspondence system, Phone Introduction, a live date program Date a Lady, and Anastasia's popular Romance Tours.
